Notes:

For the purposes of this response adverse event is defined as 'any clinical incident entered into an incident management system with a severity code (SAC score) 1 or 2 rating'. This definition is used across Health New Zealand districts and describes events that require reporting to the Health Quality and Safety Commission. In general, these are events in which a person receiving health care has experienced more significant harm.

SAC scores are subject to change as more is learned about any specific incident during the review process which follows reporting of the incident.

Data counts fewer than 5 will be presented as <5 to protect an individual's identity.
