Please note:

- Pharmac does not use “pending” to describe proposals still moving through advice and assessment. In Pharmac’s processes, “pending” refers to cases where further information, usually trial data, has been sought from clinical advisory committees.
- Pharmac uses “work in progress” to describe proposals that remain under advice or assessment, as this more closely aligns with the likely intent of the request.
- Pharmac uses “recommended for decline” where PTAC or a specialist advisory committee has recommended that a proposal be declined. A proposal is only formally declined once Pharmac has publicly consulted on the proposed decline, and a final decision has been made.
